WHEN DUNN MET FREDDIE WELSH

Jimmy Dunn, the Pittsburgh lightweight, will never forget his second meeting with Freddie Welsh, regarded by some fight critics as the next logical candidate for Ad. Wolgast for lightweight honors.

Dunn and Welsh have fought twice and each battle resulted in a draw. The first meeting took place at Philadelphia, August 28, 1906. It was a fast exhibition with honors even. So much favorable comment was created by the excellent work of both fighters that the Dayton club matched the boys in a 20-round go. This was perhaps the best bout ever pulled off at Dayton and will long linger in Dunn's memory.

In the second round in coming out of a clinch Welsh planted a stiff right to Dunn's jaw. It was a blow that carried with it every ounce of energy in Welsh's frame, and Dunn was badly dazed. A few moments later the bell came to Jimmy's rescue.

He walked back to his corner and while his seconds were working on him Jimmy Dime his manager, asked him how he felt.

Dunn saw several Welshes. "I feel strong enough," said Jimmy, "but everything seems blurred; my vision is all out of kilter. I can see seven or eight Welshes over in the corner."

"Be careful and do the best you can," was all Dime could say as Dunn answered the tap of the bell. Now, anyone who has ever seen Freddie Welsh fight knows that he is hard enough to keep track of when one's lamps are in good shape, and Dunn's eyes were far from it.

In speaking of the fight, Dunn says: "I could see Welshes all over the ring and imagined I could see punches coming from every direction. I simply covered up, didn't make a single lead, and any time I felt myself coming in contact with Welsh I grabbed him and held on, at the same time doing as much fighting as possible."

"Welsh jabbed, upcutted and hooked me, but he couldn't put me away. I had lost all hopes of getting even a draw, and realized Welsh was piling up a big lead, but I was determined to fight on."

"How it happened I don't just know, but in coming out of a clinch in the ninth round, Welsh upcutted me with great force on the opposite side of the jaw. In an instant I was myself again. Just what happened or how it was accomplished I can't just tell, and don't care, but when I went to my corner at the close of the round I was all right, my eyes were as good as ever."

"That punch righted me," I said to Dime. "What is this round, and what are my chances?"

"Welsh has a big lead over you," responded Dime, "and you will have to shade him in every one of the remaining rounds to hope for a draw. Go in and fight your best."

"I went right at the over-confident Welsh and those at the ringside that night will tell you that I gave him the finish of his life. I had in and out to get a draw, and the records will show you that I turned the trick."

DIABETES

From late figures the hope of recovery under the new emollient treatment seems to be about as follows: In people of sixty and over results are quite uniform, probably nine-tenths recovering. While at first and over a large majority of all cases yield to the treatment, below fifty and approaching forty the disease gets more stubborn, and between thirty and forty the percentage is not high—probably not much over half yielding.

Under thirty the percentage is less and in children recoveries have been very few and most of those were obtained with the aid of skilled physicians forcing nutrition, with alkaline treatment to prevent formation of acetones.

The new emollient treatment is known as Fulton's Diabetic Compound. It can be had in Ogden at Wm. Driver & Son Drug Co.

We desire every patient to write us who is not noting the usual improvement by the third week. Always state age. Literature mailed free. Jno. J. Fulton Co., 645 Battery St., San Francisco, Cal. We invite correspondence with physicians who have obstinate cases.

MACABEES ENJOY SOCIAL SESSION

The ladies of Silver Hive No. 1 Macabees of the World, held an initiation session last evening in the local lodge rooms. It was a very interesting and profitable session. Mrs. Hedges, traveling deputy, under whose direction the initiation class had been trained, was presented with a beautiful souvenir spoon. Following the initiation class, including High Five, were indulged in till a late hour, first, second and third prizes being awarded to the following ladies respectively: Mrs. Hedges, Mrs. Emma Brown and F. M. Smith. A banquet was then given by members of the lodge.

BLOOD STANDS STILL

It is useless to try to cure piles by operating on the anal valves and postures—as long as the blood is stagnant in the lower bowel, new tumors will continue to form. Clean the blood—free the circulation. Then piles will leave for good. A successful, scientific, internal remedy is Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid sold under guarantee by BADCON'S PHARMACY, Ogden, Utah. Hem-Roid does its work thoroughly. $1 for 24 days' treatment. Dr. Leonard Co., Station B, Buffalo, N. Y. Write for booklet.

CENSUS TAKING IN COUNTRY DISTRICTS

The census enumerator of district No. 216, including North Ogden, Randall, Liberty and Eden, has practically completed the first three sections and expects to complete the work in Eden during this week. The people in country districts have been generally well informed as to the purpose of the government's census and the enumerator has met with but little difficulty. Realizing that the enumerator is prohibited by a severe penalty from connecting the information thus obtained with taxation figures, they are responding generously with answers to the questions which the government is compelled to ask.

COUNCIL BALKS ON MORAN BILL

The recommendation from the city engineer in relation to paying P. J. Moran $2,500 for repairs on 25th street asphalt, was the subject of considerable discussion last evening, especially after Councilman Wilson had reminded the council that when the matter of repairing the street was first contemplated the estimated cost did not exceed $500.

"This is a fair illustration," said Mr. Wilson, "of the way these jobs grow after they are sanctioned by the city and the contracts are let. What is everybody's business is nobody's business, apparently, and a $500 estimate is jumped up to four times that figure without anyone protesting or saying a word."

Councilman Barker stated that he thought the construction companies should be obliged to furnish a guaranty to keep a certain paving in condition for a certain length of time. Upon motion of Councilman Wilson the matter was referred back to the street committee and the city engineer.

It is the best, the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing made.

OLD HORSE MAY RECEIVE PENSION

Dr. A. S. Condon made an eloquent plea in behalf of "Old Jeff" the famous fire horse of the Ogden department last night in a communication to the city council. After the reading of the epistle Councilman Peery moved that the matter be favorably acted upon immediately and the motion was carried by a unanimous vote.

The communication is self-explanatory and is as follows:

To the Honorable Mayor and City Council.
Gentlemen—I venture, respectfully, to call your attention to the horses that have lived their days of usefulness in serving the City and, as a recompense for this, are permitted, when spent and shattered by old age, and broken in spirit, and sick, to go into the hands of merciless and conscienceless horse traders.
A case in point is "Old Jeff." Time was and "Old Jeff" was the pride of the Fire Department. Then he was milk white, of magnificent proportions, proud, and a prince of horses in every movement. A great fire broke out one night in a gas house on Wall Avenue and a blazing roof caved in on "Old Jeff" and he was most cruelly burned.

After many weeks of prolonged and unrelenting suffering, death instead of kindly relieving him of a worse fate in the future, fled from his kingly presence and let him live.

The city having no further use for him because of his crippled condition and unsightly scars, and the feebleness of oncoming age, and the strenuous exertions of a life for the people, let him be sold.

Now the poor, faithful fellow has drifted into the hands of the most cruel master ever born of woman, and I venture my words in saying this, and will not hesitate to give his name if you ask it.

In my opinion, and I give it humbly, "Old Jeff" should have been mercifully destroyed at the time of the accident, but, as that is now out of the question I respectfully make you this proposition.

If the present owner of "Old Jeff" will consent to appraisement being made by three good men, or accept the estimate given of him to the County Assessor I will pay one half of the amount if the City will pay the balance. We will then, the Administration being willing, put the faithful old servant into the hands of some humane family who will care for him the remainder of his days for the cheerful work he will gladly do, or we will make a merited pensioner of him where he will spend the comfort the retirement he has so fully deserved, or he may be mercifully destroyed. In any event I agree to pay one-half of all the expenses.

Even now, overtaken by age, and beaten and humiliated he looks every inch a kingly creature, and his mute lips, could they speak, would not reproach those responsible for his present wretched and unjust prospect, but ask for mercy, so grand is his knightly bearing, and his invincible courage.

Gentlemen, I make this proposition in all sincerity and earnestness and respectfully ask that it be accepted.

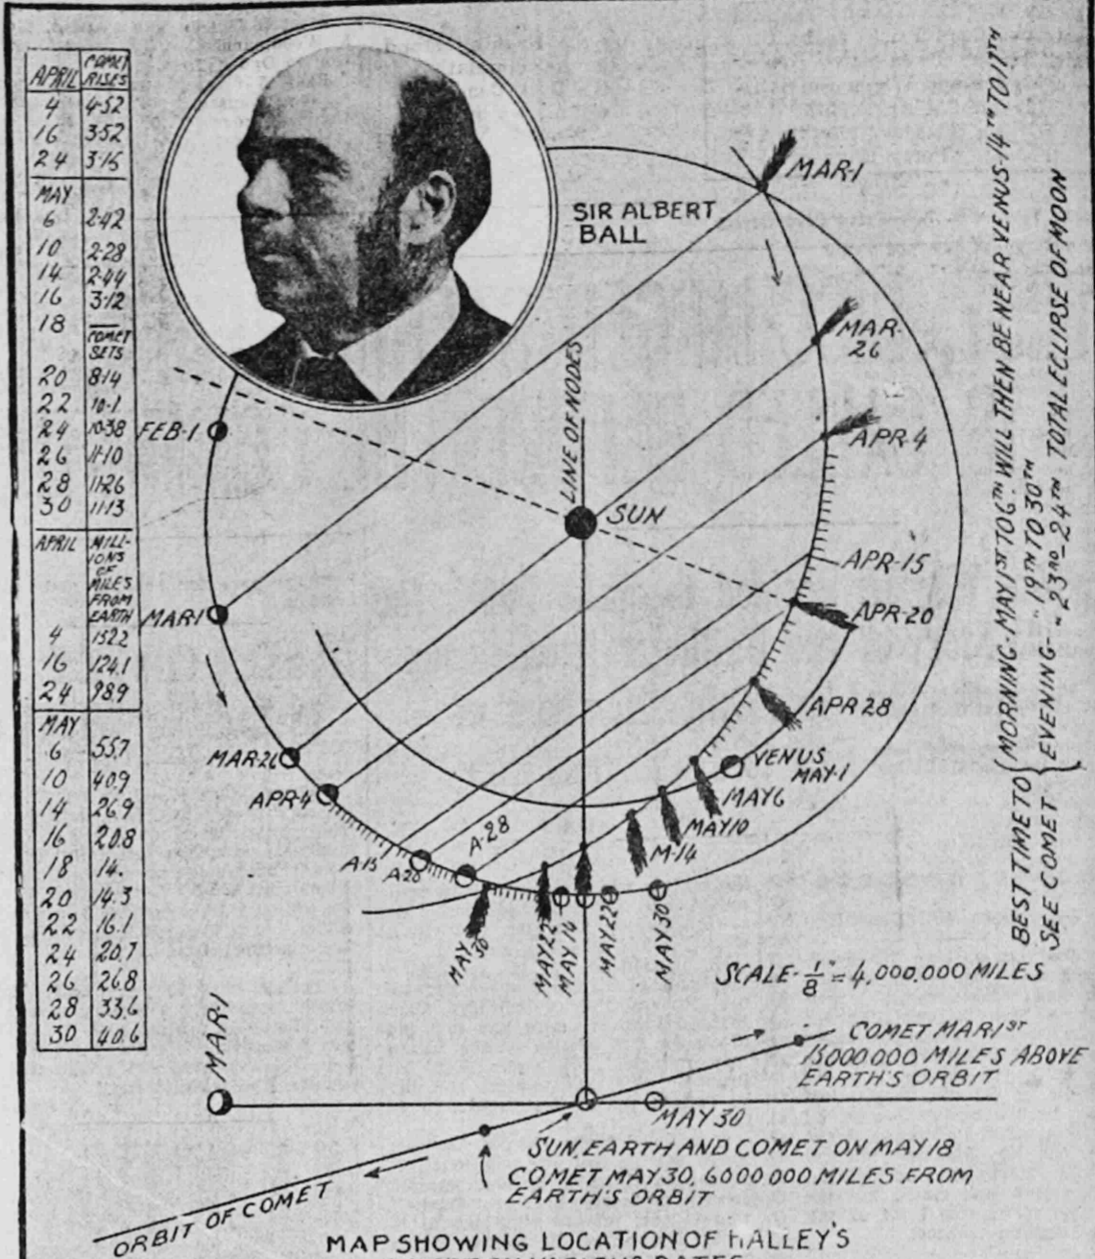

Do this, the cost to the city will be but little, the taxpayer will meet your purpose, with grateful appreciation, and tonight the sleep of your pillow will be sweeter.

Very Respectfully
A. S. CONDON

NEW YORK, May 16.—From Sir Robert Ball, our foremost astronomer, comes the last and final dictum concerning Halley's comet. It should set at rest the fears of a grand catastrophe in the minds of those folks who have been led to believe the comet contains mischief-making potentialities. Sir Robert is the royal astronomer of England and the author of several books, including "The Story of the Heavens," in which he deals with Halley's comet. "I have received multitudes of letters relating to the comet, and so many have expressed alarm as to the possibility of a collision that I venture to send a reply: My dears, a rhinoceros in full charge would not fear collision with a cowshed, and the earth need not fear a collision with a comet. In 1861 we passed through the tail of a comet. No one knew anything about it at the time. For a hundred million years life has been continuous on this earth, though we have been visited by at least five comets every year. If comets could ever have done the earth any harm they would have done it long ago, and you and I would not be discussing comets or anything else. As far as I can learn we were in the tail of Halley's comet May 12. I sincerely hope we were, and I think Sir John Herschel says somewhere that a whole comet could be squeezed into a suit case."

TO READERS OF MY ADVERTISEMENTS

Lest you tire of these two words "Gas" and "Electricity," which I have woven into fable, fiction and story, I must give you something more substantial relating to the past, present and future of these two of Nature's most wonderful and changeable forces.

This big revolving mass upon which we live and enjoy our short span in the endless career of Eternity was no doubt once a magnificent globe of luminous gas, and it is possible that electrical energy acting upon matter produced the gases composing our present world.

Magnetic lines of force, commonly called electrical energy, fills the great blue dome above and around us, far out into the shoreless sea of time, and by its mysterious force keeps every shining star in place. With a slight change matter will become either a gas, liquid, or solid. Water is the easiest transformed into one of these three conditions. A lump of coal can mostly be changed by heat into gas and the gas, by pressure, is now being changed into liquid.

The day is not far distant when one can go to the grocery and order a 5 or 10 pound tank of liquid gas. Pipes will no longer be needed. The gas will be sold in little steel bottles which can be shipped to all parts; and then the housewife in the country towns or villages will cook on a gas stove and enjoy the same comforts now in use in the modern city home.

Instructions

Always open the oven door when lighting the ovens. Open the valve, then strike match and light burner, then it will not pop. Open the sliding shutter near the valve to give the burner more air to make the flame blue. If the flame is white, it needs more air. When the baking or roasting is nearly finished, turn off one burner. Turn off the burner then though even if it is only for a minute; matches are cheaper than gas. If your stove does not give you perfect satisfaction, call us and we will send an expert to instruct you. If you find a leak around the stove or in the pipes, stop it with kitchen soap and then telephone us.
